WATCH NIGHT SERVICE
AT METHODIST CHURCH

Because of the absence of Mrs. W. Chapman, the Watch Night Service program at the Methodist Church last Saturday night was varied slightly from the program previously announced. Professor Frank E. Hannemann presented a reading of selected poems; followed by a sermon delivered by Rev. C. D. Nuter of the Rumford Baptist Church. Refreshments were served by the Ladies Aid, after which Mrs. Bertha Wheeler gave a review of Henry Van Dyke's book "The Other Wise Man". A conservation service at midnight started the New Year of rightly. Music led by the Epworth League was interspersed throughout the program. About forty persons attended.

The play is an amazing tangle of mystery and mirth, suspense and fun. A man is reported murdered. The question is "Who is the guilty party?" Is it the care-worn landlady, the overbearing daughter, the gushing Kathrynn, the blundering maid or Sweet Rose Lawn?

There will be specialties between the acts and selections by the Gould Academy Orchestra. The admission charges will be thirty-five cents for reserved seats and twenty-five cents for unreserved seats. The proceeds will be used for sending delegates to the annual summer camp and conference at Camp Maqua.

The play will be directed by Mr. Kellogg and the cast of characters follows:

Mrs. Moss, Josephine Thurston
Molra Moss, Norma Rolfe
Judith Atkins, Elizabeth Bean
Ann Bradley, Marguerite Hall
Hilda, Margaret Hanlin
Rose Lavin, Wilma Hall
Kathryn Tremayne, Katherine Brinck
Miss Pruden, Elizabeth Bean
Miss Carney, Barbara Bennett

JOHN PRESTON TRUE

Bethel people were saddened this morning, to learn of the death of John Preston True, which occurred at his home in Wahan, Mass., yesterday, Jan. 4, after several days illness of pneumonia.

Mr. True was born in Bethel, Feb. 13, 1858, the son of Dr. Nathanial T. and Susanna Stevens True. He was educated at Gould Academy, Phillips Exeter Academy, and the Roxbury Latin School. Upon completing his education he became connected with Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston publishers, with whom he remained 40 years, most of these years being spent in the Educational Department. He was the author of several books of the better class for girls and boys, some of which were adopted for school use.

He is survived by his widow, Lillian Crawford True; two married daughters, Nathalie and Eleanor; a grandson, Nathaniel True Bartholomew; two sisters, Mrs. Lillian True Bryant and Mrs. Marian True Gehring; a niece, Katherine True Bryant, and nephew, George Bourne Farnsworth.

Funeral services will be held at his late home. The remains will be cremated and interment will be at Bethel in the spring.

BOTH TEAMS UNDEFEATED, BUT

MEXICO FAVERED AFTER WIN
FROM EDWARD LITTLE

Friday night two undefeated basketball teams will clash in the first Oxford County encounter of the season. Both teams have won three games, but Mexico's upsetting of the highly praised Elbridge Little team by a 26-23 score makes them favorites.

Gould Academy will be handicapped because of a two week lay-off during the holidays, but if the team can get into good shape again, fans may be assured of one of the finest games of the year. For the past two years the Mexico-Gould games have been the constabulary thrillers of the season. This year promises to be no exception, with two undefeated teams clashing.

THESE HUNTING ACCIDENTS

(The Bridgton News)

Despite the fact that the legislature has enacted drastic laws and provided heavy penalties in such cases, the slaughter of human beings, mistaken for wild game goes ruthlessly on.

Every year the game season comes to a close there is a long list of such fatalities, but we seldom hear of much, if anything being done about it. One of the cardinal rules of hunting is that any persons who go shoot a human being shall be ineligible to procure a hunting license for the rest of that year.

GEORGE H. BARR OF AUGUSTA
GIVES ILLUSTRATED LECTURE
—SEVEN RECEIVE DEGREE

Some of the many activities of the Agricultural Department of the State of Maine were explained by George H. Barr of the State Department at the regular monthly meeting of Oxford Pomona Grange at Norway Tuesday. Mr. Barr's lecture was illustrated by pictures and was very interesting and instructive.

All officers were present at the morning session except the lecturer, E. E. Bennett, and Mrs. Bennett, the Flora, of Bethel, who were unable to come on account of illness. L. E. McIntire of East Waterford acted as lecturer and Mrs. Florence Perham of Bryant Pond as Flora. The degree was conferred upon a class of seven candidates. The work was very well done. Charles George of South Paris, 98 year old Civil War veteran, taking his usual part in the work.

At the business session $25 was appropriated for the State Grange Education Aid Fund. The master appointed the following finance committee: G. W. Q. Perham, F. W. Buck, A. L. Sanderson, L. E. McIntire and Mrs. Florence Perham of Bryant Pond. Visitors, New Century 4, Androscoggin 4.

The first number on the afternoon program was music by the Norway high school orchestra, Miss Eleanor Wood, director. The personnel was Elizabeth Ariell, Irene Tubbs, Irene Freeman, Marion Jackson, violin; Durand Holman, clarinet; Ralph A. Boyd, Edward Millott, George Sundin, trumpet; Faune Dexter and Earle Richardson, pianists. The music was excellent and thanked was expressed for the Grange by Mr. McIntire.

"Father Time Art Gallery," arranged by Mrs. Adelinda Young, was presented with the following characters: Father Time, U. S. G. Abbott, January, snow, birth of Merle and Gene Bell, February St. Valentine, Gene Bell, April blossoms, May, June, July, August, birth of Merle and Gene Bell, September, autumn leaves, Anna Holt, November, the Thanksgiving, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Brown, December, children and the like. The finale showed Father Time leading Depression (Arthur Buck) on stage as the new year came on.

The year activities of the Troop were fully received by the Committee. Last year the activities of the Troop were financed by the proceeds from the carnival and generous gifts of interested friends, amounting to $132.75.

ACCINE WILL SAVE LOSSES IN FLOCKS

Value Demonstrated by Experiments.

Chicken pox, a disease which annually takes a heavy toll in Illinois poultry flocks, can now be controlled with more safety as a result of experiments which the division of animal pathology and hygiene, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, has made during the past year with different vaccines.

Pigeon pox vaccine proved superior to chicken pox vaccine, and consequently the former is being recommended to farmers and flock owners. Proper vaccination at this season of the year will prevent losses from chicken pox during the winter months, according to the laboratory. There is no medicine or serum that will cure the infection, but vaccination will prevent it. Growing stock that is running on range should be vaccinated during June, July and August. If vaccination is put off until fall, egg production may be lowered as a result of the extra handling of the birds as well as by the reaction to the vaccine.

Potent vaccines properly administered to healthy, young chickens produce an immunity against chicken pox that probably lasts for a year or longer. It is important, however, that chickens be free from intestinal parasites and other diseases before they are vaccinated.

The pigeon pox vaccine which is being recommended causes less reaction than the chicken pox vaccine, and therefore may be used with less danger. A practical immunity is induced by the pigeon pox product. A limited supply of the vaccine prepared by the division of animal pathology and hygiene is available to qualified veterinarians for demonstration purposes. Veterinarians taking advantage of this supply are required to make a careful record of the vaccination, age and condition of the chickens vaccinated on blanks furnished for the purpose.

Keeping Poultry House

Dry Not an Easy Matter

There is a fairly general opinion that dry air is lighter than damp air, and this opinion has some influence upon methods of poultry house ventilation, says the American Agriculturist. As a matter of fact, air rises as it becomes saturated with moisture, which makes it obvious that the outlet for moist, impure air should be near the top of the house if this excess moisture is to be removed by air circulation. On the other hand, the air intake should be somewhat lower, and then the fresh, cool, dry air will enter the house and accumulate near the floor, where it takes up moisture as it becomes warmer.

The principal difficulty comes during periods when the outside air is practically saturated with moisture before it enters the house. In such cases, the only practical way to keep the house dry is to raise the temperature inside the house. Although the body heat of the birds will raise the temperature some, it has been found that artificial heat is essential if the house is to be kept absolutely dry.

Brooding Problems

Chicks that are confined to a brooder house require much more room than those that are permitted to range during a part of the day. The average 10-by-12-foot brooder will accommodate only 300 chicks when confined, and from 300 to 400 when they are on range. Chicks that are reared in confinement are more susceptible to vices such as feather-pulling and cannibalism than those on range. Greater sanitation in the brooder is necessary when chicks are confined, and producers who use wire floors in the brooders escape many of the losses which sometimes are had on regular floors. Frequently, it will pay to build a wire porch on the front of the house so as to get the chicks out in the sun a part of the time.

Medicated Eggs

Most medicated or artificial nest eggs often recommended for controlling poultry parasites are nothing but ordinary naphthalene, of which moth balls are made, and are of no use whatever against lice, mites, and other parasites of poultry, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Naphthalene, explains the department, in a bulletin, does not kill or drive away poultry parasites, and may even injure good eggs and give a moth-ball flavor to the flesh.

Keep Chicks Cool

Shade is essential for successful brooding of late-hatched chicks. In early spring brooding, ninety degrees Fahrenheit at the edge of the hover is warm enough for the first week. After that the temperature can be lowered five degrees a week until 70 degrees Fahrenheit is reached. After chicks are five weeks old they need heat only at night. With late-hatched chicks it is hard to keep the temperatures low enough and vitality sapped.—Prairie Farmer.

Harry Silver and son Durward are cutting wood for Gayden Davis.

The Willing Workers met at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Gayden Davis on Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 28, and were most delightfully entertained by Mrs. Davis and little daughter Edith Menola. On account of illness not as many as usual were out, there being only 12 women and six children present, all of whom took part in enjoying a very pleasant programme. Daft refreshments of assorted cake, cocoa and coffee were served. The radio furnished some beautiful selections and all departed at a late hour planning to meet at the home of some other member Jan. 11.

Miss Hely Holkkinen will continue her studies at Woodstock High, Bryant Pond.

Miss Elsie Abbott of Woodstock and Alma Mifflin of Paris have returned to Farmington Normal.

LAW

The law must be obeyed, or we must take the consequences. This is true of our legal enactments, of natural law, and of less of spiritual law. The law is beneficent. It is not designed to interfere with our freedom, but to conserve our liberty. All that we suffer, mental, spiritual, physical, is due to the transgression of law. Ignorance of law does not affect its consequence. Primary law (God's law) is inexorable and so is the penalty of its infringement. Obedience brings happiness and disobedience spells disaster. God gave us a river that flowed toward the sea. Man built a great dam that held the water back. The dam burst and death and destruction resulted. This was according to God's law of gravitation, but contrary to His plan. God is good. He has given us every reason to conform to His beneficent laws. The voice of wisdom says, "Obey the law."

D. S. BROOKS LETTER

THE OMNIPOTENT GOD!

In beginning our series of contributions for the New Year, 1933, we wish to emphasize the wisdom and greatness of Almighty God. It is such a common thing in this age to narrow down our conception of him to just the three letters that comprise the name with about as much significance as we would refer to an idol in heathen worship. Does the idea of creation possess our souls, when we talk of Jehovah-God, or direct our petition to him? We trust it does. To speak that holy name in a careless way is to profane it. Of what importance are we; such little finite creatures inhabiting his footstool? We are as unworthy of his favor; and yet, so dependent upon his mercy. Are you hetero to the "shortcomings" of some men, it fills your heart with pity. How much time do we devote daily to reflection of his creation? Do we think of him only as God of this one world of ours? If so, what a mistake! Jehovah is the mighty ruler of the universe. Throughout limitless space the stars, meteors, comets, and planets with their attendant suns and moons are appointed to their respective places through his infinite wisdom. The little child's comprehension of God is limited. It starts with the story of creation and his dealings with Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. It's a beautiful account; and we cherish it in a most sacred way. But mature minds should embrace a wider sphere of thought. It is right to think of him as the creator of our first parents; but lack of this he has amply demonstrated his great wisdom and omnipotence. Of course it's not necessary that we know more than what the Bible records. In the brief narration in the Book of Genesis, but a searcher after Truth will not stop there and feel satisfied; for since he has endowed us with reason and understanding, it's not folly to believe that there are other worlds than ours that are peopled with races similar to those of Earth. If we but consider the mysteries of our own, surely it is evident that certain races have been at work millions of years inside the Earth. Here is just a hint in naming: behold the great riches hidden in the deep recesses of this planet—coal, iron, precious metals, valuable gems, hidden treasures of the sea, and enormous cisterns of oil that underlie the hard strata. For sure, Jehovah wisely planned for our needs, when the great rocks were hot molten mass before any living thing could have existed. And then, later, as the surface or crust cooled, and long before the creation of our present race, there seems to have been a kind of vegetation, growing here, suited to the needs of mammoth-sized animals. Long since fossil remains of giant skeletons of a varied sort reveal the one-time presence of such creatures. Is it to be doubted that a giant race of people, too, probably existed that were so savage that they were untamable? You ask, "What became of them?" The theory of their extinction is simple to explain. In the great eternal past, warring elements fought together inside of the earth, causing mighty volcanic eruptions, earthquakes, and upheavals. The curving and broken layers of strata furnish proof of this. Inspired by these terrible explosions of molten rock and flowing streams of lava, no wonder that ancient forms of animal and plant life perished. And in later ages the Earth was declared to be "without form and void" and poisonous vapors and smoke rose up from the marshes of craters and fissures, so that light was obscured and darkness covered the face of the whole earth.

the high places, forming natural water courses to the mighty deep; and consequently the dry land appeared. Ferile soil, made from crumbling lava mixed with decayed vegetable matter furnished the inexhaustible food for plant life. Rich as is the soil in the valley of the Amazon, it holds small comparison to the strength and vitality of that virgin earth that produced the luxuriant vegetation that greeted the first parents in that faraway day from which we reckon Time.

Read again the interesting story in Genesis of the two creations. God loves the beautiful in everything; and he planned the most attractive designs for this natural world, imaginable. He said, "We will make man in our own image; and his wonderful home shall be all furnished, and waiting for him." The Creator could have done his work in a "flash"—lightening speed—but he was pleased to have the assistance of natural forces. It is better not to argue regarding the length of those creative days. However six periods of time were taken to complete the work. When it was finished he pronounced it good. The second creation required less time and was wrought by the divine hand itself: the making of Adam, and the forming of Eve from one of his ribs.

In closing this study I suggest that we enter more fully into communion with the Omnipotent God; and his wisdom will inspire our thoughts, and his love will cheer our hearts and thrill into new life our very beings. But if we get careless in our worship, we will disregard his laws; and destruction will follow. The divine man-that we have become utterly discouraged. It just can't be done!

Right now our highest ambition is to produce a family newspaper that will please us. If we achieve that ambition we will realize that our ambition was not high enough. Now and then we publish an issue that pleases us, but to date never a one that has wholly satisfied us.

We are perfectly willing to have the Citizen compared with other weekly newspapers, but not at all willing that it shall be considered the best we can do, for it really isn't. We honestly believe it is worth the price we ask for it, and more; but not worth enough more for us to brag about. About the only thing that worries us is that those who don't like the Citizen are not at all backward about saying so, while those who do seldom mention it. That is a freak of human nature that baffles us.

who, under the shadows of his Alma Mater at Hanover, N. H., passed to the great beyond, was the "father" of modern football and guided the destiny of the game through the stormy days twenty six or twenty seven years ago when it had fallen into disrepute.

An athlete in college days, he had the practical foundation, and possessed the ability, to carry on a noble work, and his place will be difficult to fill. His passing is mourned by the athletic world.

Dominic Bush, new pilot of the Cincinnati Reds, signed for one year, started his managerial career with Washington in 1923, after ending his playing days. In this span of years his teams have finished below the first division only twice, when he was at the head of the Chicago White Sox in 1930 and 1931. In 1927 he guided the Pittsburgh Pirates into the World Series. It is expected that the Reds will make a determined effort to reach greater heights under the leadership of Bush.

Fable of Go-
Tell-Him
By GEORGE ADE

(C. Bell Syndicate)—WNU Service.

NCE there was a Bushel and a half of Trouble upset by the untimely Demise of Aunt Hester Harback at the ripe age of eighty-two. She came of the Harbacks you have heard about. Her Grandfather traded with the Indians and the Noble Red Men have been Pioneers ever since.

In the thriving City of Wapahoo, here nearly all of the important citizens moved in about Day before yesterday, the Harbacks stood out in glowing Emigence like a stop-and-go signal on a frosty night. They were gowns entirely surrounded by orgogies. They were American-Beauty roses nodding in Splendor above the ugly Chickweed. They were as near as we can come with our limited Kit Tools, to a bona fide Aristocracy.

For many Years before Aunt Hester departed, she reigned in solitary splendor in the Baronial Castle which had been built by her Grandfather, one who turned the Water into the River and then nailed off the delicate Real Estate. It was made of rich, very large and cushioned, with a high-browed Roof. The old Mansions had become prehistoric but it contained a vast Supply of Heftious and Treasures—the kind for which collectors sell their Souls. There was the gilt-framed Paintings of former Harbacks who glowed in Cameo medallions and Stocks. Some of the black Walnut had come over the mountains in Ox-Wagons. The Silver dated back to the Time when Silver was a China Metal. The Crystal and the Chintz were of the Kind that my good Housekeeper liked to have round the House so that she can refer to them once in a while.

Queens With But a Single Throne. Aunt Hester had doted on Edward and Jennie, who were the Offspring of her brother, Tom Harback, the one who held the Mint Julep record north of the Ohio River. Soon after his romantic Remains were planted in the Fairview Cemetery the son Edward married Elizabeth Gibbs, whose Father was a well-known Loan Shark and Informer. Jennie hooked up with Rodney Derrlinger who was due to inherit the Implement Works and had been sandpapered at a College in the East.

Lizzie Gibbs acquired the 18-karat diamond of Harback and soon after became to feel different, as the Blue corpuscles coursed madly in her Palacial Veins. Jennie had proved her Love by assuming the Label of Derrlinger but she was still a direct and genuine Lineal Descendant of the Rufus Harback who had double-crossed the Indians and eloped—the government Land. She could not forget that she belonged to the only First Family in Town. Also she had great difficulty in forgetting that Ed's wife, nee Lizzie Gibbs, was the daughter of a Grocery Clerk who acquired his life by nursing Chittel Fingertips and crying whenever he had to cut the Rate to Two Per Cent.

"Depend on me, Kid," said Mr. Derrlinger. "I never lost a Battle."

Down at the Office he found Ed painfully working on a Sheet of Foolscap.

"I handled the Old Lady's Affairs for Years," said Edward, "and I know that the subject is at last getting a square deal by regular doctors who believe senility may be postponed just so long as the endocrine glands can be kept in good working order.

Because of the ill repute given to Stelmach's discoveries by the pretensions of quackery, the medical profession swung over to the other extreme. But old folks will be glad to know that the subject is at last getting a square deal by regular doctors who believe senility may be postponed just so long as the endocrine glands can be kept in good working order.

"Friendship can go no further than that!" exclaimed Rodney Derrlinger. "Can you get it through the Police Court?"

"It's a Clinch. The Judge is one of us."

on State Occasions. She tells me that I am the Heir-Apparent and the only Harback qualified to glorify the Traditions of the Tribe, so it is my Duty to move out. Everything except the Curtains and the Sewing Machine."

"What, may I ask, is to be done?"

"It is against the Law to poison our Wives so I think we had better burn down the House."

Jennie was waiting for Rod.

"Did you tell him just what Aunt Hester always expected me to have?" she asked.

"I sure did, Honey," he replied. "I had the Staff listed and he knows now that we absolutely refuse to stand for any Monkey Business."

"What did he say?"

"He said he'd have another Talk with Elizabeth. Leave everything to me."

As for Mrs. Ed, she was on her High Horse when he came home and tried to sneak upstairs without being spotted.

"I suppose," she said, "that the Derrlinger Woman has got it into her head that she can go up there and clean out that House, even if you are Administrator and Aunt Hester always wanted you to keep the Family Collections intact."

The Best Way Out.

"Listen, Deurle," said the Typical Husband. "I didn't mince Words. I laid down the Law to Rod and told him to give it straight to Jen. There'll be no Threesome with your Uncle Fuller. I'll see that my Sister gets a fair Shake but whatever you think you want you will get. Nobody can tell me where to get off or how to head in. I'm a Tough Egg."

"You tell him that Aunt Hester left Everything in your Hands and you are going to stand on your Rights and have the Say-So," said Elizabeth. "Make it strong, because Roddy is a Weak Character and is absolutely dominated by Jennie, who has a lot of good Qualities but is very, very headstrong."

Came another day and another Conference impended. Mrs. Derrlinger was giving Rod the Low Down and Inside on the fearful Crisis.

"I love my Brother," quoth she, "but Cindor compels me to say that the Upstart who chloroformed him and carried him to the Altar had got the Indian Sign on him. The poor Fish will do whatever Lizzie orders him to do. She never saw a Butter Knife or a Dessert Spoon until she emigrated into our Family and now she wants to go up there and grab a lot of Silver that she wouldn't know how to lay out on the table. You tell him that I get all the Silver and the Famous Gallery on the Landing and the Chippendale and the Old Silver and don't forget the Side-Board. She can have Everything in the Laundry. She'll know what to do with a Wringer."

"Depend on me, Kid," said Mr. Derrlinger. "I never lost a Battle."

Down at the Office he found Ed painfully working on a Sheet of Foolscap.

"I handled the Old Lady's Affairs for Years," said Edward, "and I know that the subject is at last getting a square deal by regular doctors who believe senility may be postponed just so long as the endocrine glands can be kept in good working order.

Hearty Breakfasts in Days of Samuel Pepys

An insight into the menus of American Colonials days is had in the immortal diary of Samuel Pepys, written 40 years after the Pilgrims had established their colony on the Atlantic coast. Pepys' London table, of course, had a greater variety of food than was available to the Colonists, but their diet was basically the same.

There were no "breakfast foods" in Samuel's time. Fruit Juices were not considered as having food value, and were taken on rare occasions as the average person today takes an ice cream soda. Meats constituted not only the piece de resistance but practically the entire meal. He writes:

"Breakfast at Mrs. Harper's upon a cold turkey pie and a goose" and "a fine breakfast of bread and butter and sweetmeats and other things with great choice and strong drinks with which I could not avoid making my head ache." Shades of food faddists! The name Pepys should be forever synonymous with dyspepsia.—Los Angeles Times.

Moth Lives on Flowers

The hawk-moth, or the humming-bird-moth as it is sometimes called, is peculiarly fitted by nature to draw sustenance from flowers which, under ordinary circumstances, would be beyond the powers of an insect its size to feed upon. It has a fairly long spindle-shaped body with narrow, strong wings, but the peculiar feature about it is the sucking tube through which it draws its nourishment from the flowers. This tube is often twice the length of the body of the moth and when not in use it is curled neatly like a watch spring and is carried beneath the head.

It is usually seen along about dusk and its habit of hovering over plants emitting a humming sound gave it the name of the humm-bird moth.

How Painting is "Finished"

The preparation used to give a smooth glossy texture or finish to paintings is poppy oil mixed with turpentine.

How Carbon Black is Made

The carbon black used in printer's ink and on typewriter ribbons is a product formed from incomplete combustion of illuminating gas.

How Asbestos is Woven

Asbestos is a mineral and is incomparably fit for nature to draw sustenance from flowers which, under ordinary circumstances, would be beyond the powers of an insect its size to feed upon. It has a fairly long spindle-shaped body with narrow, strong wings, but the peculiar feature about it is the sucking tube through which it draws its nourishment from the flowers. To begin with," said Ed, "my little playmates' idea is to go up to the house and pick out whatever she likes, and when she gets her's, her Wife can take away the leaves. She has her mind definitely made up in regard to the Ancestors, the Oil, that two-ton Sideboard, all of the English Silver and the dishes that Aunt Hester always used

STRUGGLE FOR EXISTENCE WIPES OUT THE "UNFIT"—

IS the present condition of the giraffe due to the fact that his ancestors stretched their necks to browse upon the foliage of trees?

Are the characteristics which so nicely equip an organism to meet its environment the accumulated product of many generations of special effort or special experience? Careful experimentation answers: "No. Acquired characters are not inherited." Then how can we account for organic evolution?

It would seem therefore that carriers of the old school should find a happy hunting ground along the world famous "Elk Walk" and Bellevue avenue, where these feminine millionaires have palatial homes.

Perhaps the most celebrated of the glittering dozen is Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney. Nor is Mrs. Whitney's fame based wholly on the wealth inherited from her husband, or upon the internationally famous racing sibbles the founded.

Has Artistic Flair.

Her fame is based on her prowess as a sculptor, dearly won after years of drudgery. Even when she was Gladys Vanderbilt she was known as "the poor little rich girl" who wanted to become an artist. Her efforts in this field at first amused her friends, and then won their respect.

Probably the most exclusive of the dozen is Mrs. Hamilton McK. Twombly, in whose drawing rooms at "Vine Hill" on Oyster Point one never encounters newcomers to society.

No less famed as a hostess is Mrs. Alice Gwynne Vanderbilt, widow of Cornelius Vanderbilt, who reigns at "The Breakers," as dowager mistress of the colony.

The old Vanderbilt home at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, in New York city, was sold some years ago by Mrs. Vanderbilt for the record-breaking sum of $7,100,000.

One of the twelve is a princess. She is the former Anita Stewart, now the widow of the Portuguese Prince Manuel de Braganza. Her home is "The Moorings."

The princess inherited from her father, William Rhinelander Stewart, lawyer, financier and philanthropist, over $1,000,000, while her stepfather, James Henry Smith left her $100,000.

Mrs. Moses Taylor was left an esteem estimated at the time at $10,000,000 when her husband, international oil king, died in 1928.

Winters in Morocco.

Mrs. Taylor, who is active in civic and philanthropic matters, spends her summers at "The Glen" and her winters at La Saadi Marrakash, Morocco. Her husband is remembered for being the first to bring the game of polo to Africa.

Another of the sensational wealthy is Mrs. James B. Duke, whose husband, the North Carolina tobacco king, left an estate valued at nearly $90,000,000.

Of this estate about $200,000 went to Duke University in South Carolina and a large part of the residue to the Daughters of Charity.

The tarnish on copper, brass and bronze is copper carbonate.

It may be removed by friction or it may be dissolved in weak acids.

But old folks will be glad to know that the subject is at last getting a square deal by regular doctors who believe senility may be postponed just so long as the endocrine glands can be kept in good working order.

Because of the ill repute given to Stelmach's discoveries by the pretensions of quackery, the medical profession swung over to the other extreme. But old folks will be glad to know that the subject is at last getting a square deal by regular doctors who believe senility may be postponed just so long as the endocrine glands can be kept in good working order.

Friendship can go no further than that!" exclaimed Rodney Derrlinger. "Can you get it through the Police Court?"

"It's a Clinch. The Judge is one of us."

MORTAL: Solomon saved his Reputation by never getting mixed up with a Bunch of Heirs.

How Wall Street Got Name

Wall street in New York received its name from the fact that in the time of Peter Stuyvesant a palisade or wall was built across Manhattan along that line to protect the Dutch Colonists from a threatened British attack. The wall was removed before 1700, but the street along it has ever since been called Wall street.

How Asbestos is Woven

Asbestos is a mineral and is incom-bustible. The fibers can be woven into cloth.

How to Prevent Sugar Lumps

No housekeeper likes to have her sugar bowl filled with unbroken lumps of all sizes, especially when there's company.

How can one prevent the pesky lumps from forming, particularly in damp weather? H. V. Moss, chemist of the Provident chemical works of St. Louis, has solved the problem. He has discovered a way to take the lumps out of sugar bowls and keep them out. Simply add a little calcium phosphate tone per cent is enough. It will not only prevent the lumps from forming, but calcium phosphate, it has been discovered, has valuable health properties.

How Bark Used to Open Doors, Turn on Lights

Seattle—Is Issaquah, a little town in the Cascade mountains, at which the bark of a tree splits the bark into vertical lines and produces the familiar ridges. If a tree grows in height by the gradual lengthening of the entire trunk and limbs, there would also be horizontal ridges in the bark; but a tree grows in height growth only from the top that is, through the annual extension of terminal buds, and therefore there are no ridges in the bark running around the trunk. Certain trees, known as decorative trees, shed their bark at intervals and avoid the necessity for the ridges.

Why the Ridges in Bark

Trees grow in circumference in the same way as the bark does.

Mr. John T. Peck of Los Angeles shares "The Elms" on Belvoir Avenue with his brother, the coal millionaire, Edward J. Berwind.

There there is Mrs. Nicholas Brown, the elder, who is son John Nicholas Brown, became the "wealthiest baby in America" when his father and uncle died within two weeks of each other, leaving their colossal fortunes.

The wealthiest baby now, however, probably is Mrs. Brown's grandson, born to her son and daughter-in-law July 4. The fortune is variously estimated between $4,000,000 and $10,000,000, a comfortable sum in either case.

Other fabulously rich unattached women include Mrs. James Laurence Van Allen of "Walkhurst"; Mrs. T. Shaw Sage of "Ocean Lawn"; Mrs. Edward V. Hartford of "Seaverge"; Mrs. James B. Haggis of Villa Rosa.

Why Peppers Are Hot

Peppers are hot because of a glucose in the pepper close to the spot where the seed is attached. The pungent principle derived from this glucose is an essential oil.

Why Potatoes Turn Green

Exposure to light causes potatoes to turn greenish in color. They are best preserved when kept as dark and cool as possible without permitting them to freeze.

Why Linen Is "Damask"

Linens woven so as to show a pattern, table linen is known as damask because of a resemblance to the fine patterned silks of Damascus.

NOT BAD

A man was asked to explain the difference between animal instinct and human intelligence. "If we had instinct," he said, "we should know everything we needed to know without learning it, but we do get reason, and so we have to study more even 'man blind or be a fool'." Unusually fast reader.

A $2,000 damage was done to the fire and water of the H. S. Baker Rock Water Works, Gardiner, on Sunday. Most of the damage was by smoke and water in the Morris Shaffer Building there and the office of Dr. J. P. Max, a chiropractor.

THE FINGER POINTS In and Around Bethel

Gordon E. Lathrop

Co-operation

Two fool jackasses — say, get this done — Were tied together with a piece of rope. Said one to the other, "You come my way."

While I take a nibble from this new-mown hay."

"I won't," said the other. "You come with me."

So they got nowhere, just pawed up dirt.

And, oh, by golly, that rope did hurt.

Then they faced about, these stubborn mules.

And said, "We're acting like human fools!"

Let's pull together. I'll go your way, Then come with me and we'll both eat hay."

Well, they ate their hay, and they liked it, too.

And swore to be comrades good and true.

As the sun went down they were heard to bray:

"Ah, this is the end of a perfect day!"

How representative is the first part of this bit of poetry of the political parties at Washington; of the factions in our own town's political, social, and moral life; of a lot of our items, as evidenced in the divorce courts; and of the newspaper and its readers as shown by their lack of comment and contributions. We're all "human fools" even as the jackass.

Think This One Over!

We have the Lions Club, Masons, and Legion, all for grown men. Why not something similar for boys and young men, built on the Y. M. C. A. idea? There are many evenings which could be spent to social advantage and in intelligent recreation, if properly directed. There is nothing now to idle the younger men in paths of appropriate methods of spending leisure time. Such neglect leads to their galavanting around in speedsters, getting into mischief and indulging in reckless pleasures. Not only is this form of recreation an expensive pastime (for we have not yet accepted the compressed air model car) but it lacks direction, method, and result.

Opinions may differ as to the sort of Recreation Center a town of Bethel's size could support, but the idea may be adjusted to the spirit. The Universal Church might be utilized as a recreational center, or for a moderate sum, a vacant room in the Odd Fellows' Hall might be fitted up as a cheerful club room. There might be two or three pool tables, a bowling alley, a few lounge chairs, magazines and a radio. A volunteer caretaker, or two or three of them on a staggered schedule would keep things orderly and in repair. Fees should be small, with the intention only of providing for necessities and repairs. Are there any public spirited men who wish to see the boys have advantages equal to their own?

Anybody can see that their feet hurt," Spelman declared. "I see gulls have strange effects on their heels and look around for a place to sit down. It's causing their heel aches."

Spelman's interest in the foot troubles of the sea gulls has attracted the attention of many commanders, who ride his ferry daily, and the subject frequently comes in for "round table" discussion during the trip across the bay.

Ferryman Says Nature Treated Sea Gulls Mean

San Francisco.—After ten years' study Ed Spelman admits he has not yet solved the mystery of why sea gulls have fallen aches.

Spelman, ferry conductor on San Francisco bay, contends that nature played a mean prank on the birds which loiter around the edge of the sea. The gulls were not provided knees.

"Man has known to above the shock when he jumps," explained Spelman. "But when a gull lands he has to take the jolt on his aches."

He gave watched gulls light around the docks all day, and I'd go home at night with my feet aching from just watching them."

Gulls were provided with a calloused place on the rear of each foot to act as shock absorbers, according to Spelman. Those "heel pads" soon wear off.

"Anybody can see that their feet hurt," Spelman declared. "I see gulls have strange effects on their heels and look around for a place to sit down. It's causing their heel aches."

200 Drunken Fish Reel

Ashore in California

Moss Landing, Calif.—Liquor is known to have strange effects on human beings, but for fish to deliberately walk out of a river—well, that happened here and several of Moses Landing's leading citizens will swear it isn't a fish story.

Two hundred fish staggered out of the Moro Collo slough crawled on their stomachs, flattered their gills in the air and then drew their last breath on earth.
